the Hungry*

The Capital Area Food Bank, founded in 1980, provides food through hundreds of partner agencies to nearly 500,000 hungry people in the Washington metro area. A member of Feeding America, the CAFB is the largest public, nonprofit food and nutrition education resource in the region and annually provides 27.5 million meals to residents struggling with hunger. It takes a comprehensive approach to addressing hunger by increasing access to nutritious food and initiating change through education, leadership training and advocacy. The CAFB works closely with, and provides food to such partner agencies as Bread for the City, DC Central Kitchen, Martha’s Table, ALIVE!, Manna and hundreds more. For more information on hunger, visit the CAFB website at www.capitalareafoodbank.org

Dear Friends

GREG TEN EYCK
Chairman

THE CAPITAL AREA FOOD BANK experienced significant changes last year. Our exceptional leader for 32 years, Lynn Brantley, retired at the end of 2012, but, thankfully, she will continue to serve the food bank as president emeritus.

Chosen unanimously by the Board of Directors, Lynn's successor is Nancy E. Roman, immediate past Director of Public/Private Partnerships and Communications at the United Nation's World Food Programme (WFP), the world's largest humanitarian agency, feeding 100 million people in 75 countries.

Nancy embodies the skills, experience and devotion necessary to continue the tradition of excellence and innovation so critical to the future of the Capital Area Food Bank. Her success in raising awareness and resources for the fight against hunger worldwide is well-known. Her leadership and expertise will allow us to expand further to meet the complex hunger needs in our region.

Another major change in 2012, and a legacy of Lynn Brantley's leadership, was the Capital Area Food Bank's move into a brand new food distribution center at 4900 Puerto Rico Avenue in Northeast Washington, just one-half mile from our old facility.

Due to the uncertain economy and the increasing numbers of those suffering from inadequate nutrition, Lynn directed the Capital Area Food Bank to embark on a capital campaign in 2005 under the leadership of co-chairs Donald E. Graham, J.W. Marriott Jr., the late Abe Pollin and Bennett Zier. The Board and I agreed with Lynn that we were outgrowing our former facility and were no longer able to meet the growing demand for food in the region.

The campaign concluded in November of 2010 with a total of $37 million raised plus a capstone grant of $5 million from Mr. and Mrs. William E. Conway Jr. through their charitable trust, The Bedford Falls Foundation.

Construction of the new facility began in January of 2011. The architectural firm, Epstein; the general contractor, Turner Construction Company; and the development manager, the Jair Lynch Development Partners renovated a 23,000-square-foot office portion of an existing building and constructed a 100,000-square-foot facility devoted to food storage and the partner agency shopping area. The name of the entire structure is The Bedford Falls Foundation Distribution Center, in recognition of the capstone grant given by the Conways.

The Capital Area Food Bank's new facility opened on July 31, 2012. Over time, we will be able to increase our storage capacity and food distribution to meet the growing need in our region.

As the Capital Area Food Bank enters 2013 with new leadership and a much-improved food distribution center, we offer our sincere gratitude for your time and donations that help us transform each dollar into three nutritious meals.

We pledge to continue working diligently to ensure that everyone in our community has access to adequate and nutritious food. We will extend our outreach resources that educate, empower and enlighten our neighbors. And, we stand behind our mission to serve others 'til no one is hungry.

Dear Supporters

NANCY E. ROMAN

President and CEO

I JOINED THE CAPITAL AREA FOOD BANK after serving for five years in a senior leadership position in the United Nation's world hunger program, where we were responsible for providing food for 100 million people in 75 countries.

Some of my experiences during that period were devastating.

A woman in Haiti tried to give me her baby, because she could not feed him.

People huddled in refugee huts in Darfur described having their sisters and daughters raped and killed in their villages, and crossing Sudan, living on little more than grass.

However, nothing has been as disturbing — or inspires me more to change — than the debilitating and stubborn hunger I have witnessed in my hometown, the capital of the most affluent country on earth.

Early into my new job, I decided to get out and see the Capital Area Food Bank's work in action. After meeting with our terrific truck drivers, I climbed into the cab with Odessie McCauley, who goes by Jun, short for Junior. Jun has been driving trucks full of food around Washington, Northern Virginia and Maryland for 26 years. Our destination that cold March morning was the Dodge Park neighborhood in Landover, MD — no more than 30 minutes from the White House.

When the Capital Area Food Bank truck rolled up, the faces brightened. It was not yet 7 am, but there were already a dozen people in line — two mothers with young children, elderly people with canes and walkers, all of them patiently and quietly waiting in the cold.

I was greeted warmly by the Reverend Banks who asked me into his office. When we returned just 10 minutes later, 50 people were in line, waiting in the cold.

At that moment, a woman rode by in a dilapidated car and shouted out, "Reverend Banks, I can't wait for food today, or I'll be late to work, but if there is any left, save me some."

It is hard to imagine that one in two children in Washington, DC goes to bed hungry. Or, that blocks from the White House, elderly people wait patiently in the cold because they lack for food.

But they do.

Over the past year, we and our 700 partner agencies have seen hunger rising among the working poor. With gas prices ticking ever upward, with Social Security taxes increasing to 6.2 percent from 4.2 percent, with food prices rising much more than wages, many more who are working full time find themselves needing additional food for themselves and their families.

We at the food bank have been providing it — through agencies you know and respect such as Bread for the City and ALIVE! — and through mobile pantries in hard-to-reach neighborhoods all over the Washington metro area.

The Capital Area Food Bank provides food directly to tens of thousands of hungry children, seniors and families. Through our partner agencies, we are reaching close to 500,000 people. We are also providing leadership, training and food resources for hundreds of organizations, churches and other dedicated groups serving the hungry.

As we move forward, we are committed to three important issues:

- working more efficiently so we can do more for more people;
- providing better nutrition and more fruits and vegetables; and
- helping individuals and families gain consistent access to affordable nutritious food themselves.

With your continued commitment, we are helping to make sure mothers, fathers and children in the capital area don't go to bed hungry.

Thank you so very much for helping us help the hungry across our region.

THE BEDFORD FALLS FOUNDATION DISTRIBUTION CENTER

The Capital Area Food Bank moved into the new Bedford Falls Foundation Distribution Center on July 31, 2012. The new facility is allowing us to better manage food storage and distribution. It features a teaching kitchen in a classroom setting that is used for more nutrition education and cooking classes, a demonstration garden, and a much larger and more convenient storage, freezer and refrigeration capacity.

CAFB WORKING IN THE COMMUNITY

President Obama and the First Family stopped by the food bank the day before Thanksgiving.

More than 800 guests filled the ballroom at the Marriott Wardman Park Hotel for the Capital Area Food Bank's 9th Annual Blue Jeans Ball.

The food bank's 4th Annual Empty Bowls brought together chefs, local artists and members of the community to help feed families, children and seniors struggling with hunger.

President Obama tops off holiday bags with fresh vegetables, which the food bank provides to help families prepare healthy and affordable meals.

Washington Nationals Mascot Sreech encouraged public support for the food bank's 10th Annual Stuff-A-Truck food drive.

MEET ELIZABETH LOHRMEYER

After her move to the District from Seattle, Elizabeth wanted to get involved in the community. She eventually found her way to the Capital Area Food Bank. Elizabeth comes to the food bank twice a week to conduct meal demonstrations for partner agencies and assists with recipe testing classes. Elizabeth's smile and positive energy brighten our day. We can't thank her enough for all she does.

MEET KATE SHERWOOD

Kate volunteers her time helping create new recipes. She also lends her talents by leading cooking classes, producing videos and serving as a judge for past CAFB events. Kate is a great addition to the food bank, sharing with us her positive spirit.

Capital Campaign

'TIL NO ONE IS HUNGRY

The Capital Area Food Bank thanks the visionaries who invested in the future of our community by supporting the creation of our new food distribution center, which opened in July, 2012. The new building is already increasing capacity to serve the nearly 700,000 people in the region at risk of hunger. And special thanks to Capital Campaign Co-chairs Donald E. Graham, J.W. Marriott Jr., the late Abe Pollin and Bennett Zier.

MEET PAULA PORTER

After seeing a television special on child hunger, Paula was inspired to volunteer at the food bank. Working over 35 years as a HR professional, Paula now enjoys her retirement at the food bank, helping recruit potential volunteers throughout the region. We are very lucky to have her as part of the food bank family.

MEET ELIZABETH STEVENS

Elizabeth has been a volunteer for several years and recently completed Volunteer Leader Training. She helps manage volunteers for food drives and special events, as well as for packing and sorting in our distribution center. No matter what the task, Elizabeth is always willing to take on new leadership roles at the food bank, helping to increase our capacity to serve.

EMPOWERING OUR PARTNERS

BREAD FOR THE CITY

Bread for the City provides vulnerable residents of Washington, DC with comprehensive services, including food, clothing, medical care, and legal and social services in an atmosphere of dignity and respect.

SHABACH! MINISTRIES

Shabach! Ministries develops children, youth, individuals and families through stellar educational and human services programs, which cultivate exemplary character, a life-long love of learning and create a healthier community for today and tomorrow. It was founded by the First Baptist Church of Glenarden, Maryland in Prince George's County.

ALIVE!

ALIVE! brings volunteers from over 40 religious congregations, working together to help those in need. Founded in 1969, ALIVE! is the largest private safety net for the needy in Alexandria, Virginia by providing emergency food; shelter; low-cost early childhood education and childcare; financial help for rent, utilities and medical care.

A TRIBUTE TO LYNN BRANTLEY

1980-2012: Thirty-two Years of Service

LYNN BRANTLEY retired as President and CEO of the Capital Area Food Bank at the end of 2012, where she provided the leadership and inspiration for 32 years. Throughout those years serving the cause that was written most deeply in her conscience, Lynn was the real thing — the authentic voice of the food bank.

The operational mandate of the Capital Area Food Bank — to feed the hungry with dignity, prevent food waste and save partner agencies countless dollars while they serve those most in need — is in force today.

Lynn and others, in cooperation with the Interfaith Conference, the United Planning Organization, and the DC Department on Aging, founded the Capital Area Food Bank in 1980 on Martin Luther King Jr.'s birthday, January 15, after recognizing the desperate need to organize food provisions for those suffering from hunger in the District of Columbia and surrounding areas after cuts in the USDA's Food Stamp program.

Lynn took on the role of executive director in 1988, and several years later became president and CEO. From a modest operation, the CAFB has grown to 130 employees and now distributes 27.5 million meals a year through its 700 partner agencies in the District of Columbia, Northern Virginia and Prince George's and Montgomery counties in Maryland.

Roman, CEO of the CAFB; Lynn Brantley and Mrs. Obama.

Lynn was an unwavering voice for the powerless and will always be remembered as a leader of the hunger relief movement throughout the region.

Dear Capital Area Food Bank Family,

RETIRING FROM MY MISSION IN LIFE — the Capital Area Food Bank — has been the most difficult decision I've ever had to make. While I'm no longer there physically, every day, through my thoughts and prayers, I reach out to my former colleagues and those they serve so admirably.

I welcome our new leader, Nancy Roman, who will take the Capital Area Food Bank to new heights.

Through the early 2000's the food bank was having to turn away millions of pounds of food annually; we were very limited in the amount of fruits and vegetables we could accept and were paying significant dollars for outside freezer and refrigeration space. This, coupled with the economic downturn beginning in 2007, caused a significant increase in hunger in our region.

You, our community did respond by supporting our capital campaign to construct a new food distribution center that is fully paid for — no debt. This ensures that well into the future, 92 percent of the resources donated to the food bank will be spent on food and services for the people we serve.

In 2012 we moved into a 123,000-square-foot building that provides dry storage, freezer and refrigeration capacity that will greatly increase the amount of produce we can move out into the community through our 700 partner agencies. I am so deeply moved by your generosity, energy, and passion and how you mobilized as a community to make this happen. Your commitment means that, over time, we will be able to reach 700,000 of our neighbors who face hunger daily. I feel privileged to have been a small part of this process. Thank you!

Our new facility enables the Capital Area Food Bank to renew its commitment to distributing nutritious food and, at the same time, focus on programs that will showcase how food bank ingredients can be transformed into healthy meals. The additional space also provides for the Mildred Brooks Teaching Kitchen in a classroom setting which is used for more nutrition education and cooking classes to help those who receive food learn how to stretch their dollars even farther.

The food bank's relationship with our partner agencies, which include Food & Friends, Shabach! Ministries, Bread for the City, S.O.M.E., ALIVE!, Martha's Table and "N" Street Village, among others, is crucial.

Because of our partnerships, these organizations are able to use resources they would normally spend on food to strengthen other programs, including job-training, day care, medical services, housing and counseling.

Today, food donations come from more than 400 wholesalers, farmers, grocery stores, brokers, and manufacturers, including 200 local businesses. Over 18,000 volunteers help inspect, clean, sort and track nonperishable food each year, saving the food bank over $2 million annually in labor costs, while confirming the commitment of the community to make sure that their neighbors who may be struggling financially have the security of a full pantry at home for themselves and their children.

I will always remember those of you who have encouraged us over the years and have contributed your time, food and funds. Your support ensures that daily bread is not just a gift for some, but is available to all who come to the table when they are hungry.

Lynn Brantley

OTHER WAYS TO HELP THE CAPITAL AREA FOOD BANK

While we depend on food, funds and volunteers, there are other ways you can support the Capital Area Food Bank.

Please contact Roxann Seals at rseals@capitalareafoodbank.org if you are able to assist us with the following:

- Work in our new Urban Demonstration Garden
- Underwrite the cost of food drive boxes
- Provide auction items for our annual Blue Jeans Ball
- Chefs needed to teach nutrition courses
- Donate motor vehicles in good condition to supplement our transportation needs
- Facilitate team building activities for staff
- Provide leadership training for staff
- Donate multimedia projector
- Provide pro bono landscaping services for a year
- Link the CAFB to your neighborhood listservs and blogs
